Translucent colors represent the beautiful music created when diverse individuals come together. When we open our minds, our souls become a colorful rainbow instead of a dull, black pit. I matter because I know that these elements will help build a stronger community. I have been working diligently towards my music goals. I matter because I will bring people together with music.

Rainbow Strong, Rainbow Together

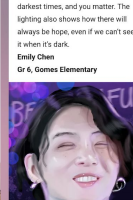

I want to live and play, in a rainbow nation.

Colorful classmates are my friends, to an teachers and healthcare workers.

I care for others

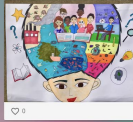

My art work show that one of the girls is consoling the other girl because the other girl is being bullied at her school.

Saamya Mitta

My drawing showed my skills and concerns that will drive me to make a difference in the world. I deeply care about the ocean. Every time I see those marine animals that are hurt by our human pollution, my heart is bleeding. Reading is my life! Reading will help me gain my knowledge and bond friends. So I want to share it to my friends and get them to love reading. I love computer programming, and use my creative side to make new technologies for the future. These are the gifts that I can give to the world!

The Missing Puzzle Piece

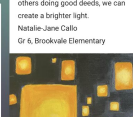

I matter because I am one of God's creations. I am just like all other creations of God, but I am a creation that brings happiness to my family and friends. If I was missing from our world, the events in my life would have also gone missing. If I

Shining in The Darkness

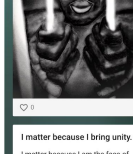

I matter because every my small acts of kindness can go a long way to spread positivity. My good deeds can have an impact to the people around me. It doesn't have to be a grand gesture, even the smallest gesture of kindness can make a difference. The lanterns represent the acts of kindness while the night sky represents the negativity around us. Working hard in hand with others doing good deeds, we can create a brighter light.

none of us really are. His eyes, his whole body is sending the soul-stirring message: "I matter because I am your equal. Because I have a purpose. Because I am a human being, just like you!"

Ayush Gupta
Gr 11, American High School

I matter because I bring unity.

I matter because I am the face of unity and diversity. The drawing needs all the colors to make a beautiful art piece. For a beautiful face you need all the colors. We are one nation with diverse people, after all we are the United States. The face represents the nation and the colors show diverse people. It doesn't matter where I am from, or

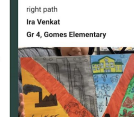

'Make a Choice for a better future'

I matter because... I chose a path of life that appreciates saving the nature by following simple daily practices. The practices include saving water, electricity, and using renewable sources of energy like wind energy, solar energy. Growing more trees and recycling waste helps to contribute to greener planet and saving our wildlife.

The choices we make today affect future generation of life forms, and I have made the choice to take this right path.

'A Better World'

My inspiration for this is the COVID-19 pandemic. The umbrellas represent the different people from around the world and the ball represents the COVID-19 virus. This photograph signifies that if all the people from the world work together we can defeat COVID-19, and we can get back to our normal lives. If each one of us thinks "I matter" and takes necessary actions, then we

I have a purpose in my life

In my song I have a purpose in my life to be myself. I will reach to sky. I will touch to stars. I will shine like moon and rise like the sun. I will enjoy everything life will throw at me.

Kindness matters

I matter because I am kind. This music is all about encouraging people to show kindness to one another and to the environment. The music starts off mellow representing a person feeling low. When she receives an act of kindness, her world starts to glow. The music tempo picks up symbolizing that kindness spreads from one person to another. Kindness is as contagious as "Corona virus" except that it's more joyful.

The Butterfly Effect

I matter because every small change I make in the world can lead to bigger changes and eventually change the world. The term "Butterfly Effect" refers to an idea that a butterfly flapping its wings in Tokyo can result in a tornado in Tennessee. Just like the butterfly in Japan, one person can make a small change that inspires others and makes the world a better place. Each and every one of us matters. Each and every one of us can change the world.

Through the Looking Glass, I see a world in black and white, to wrongs and its rights. I also see shades of gray... the maybes. It is up to me to figure out if it is wrong or right. I love to ride my bike! I have 18 inches wheel size bike. It is pink, black, and a little bit of blue. I really love the color pink and light blue. This was the last size with side wheels. So, when I have 20-inch wheel size bike in the future, it wouldn't have any side wheels. But first I need to learn my bike without the side wheels.

The Loudest Voice
- Aakarsha Varadarajan

I heard some sounds from the ground
I bent down to see what's going on
The book said to me "I matter because you can write on me"
Then the pencil spoke to me "I am unique because you need me for school"
I was surprised
I ran to the backyard to look for my mom
There the tree said to me "I matter because I give you shade"
